New York attorney Paul D. Seghers, who spoke at the recent Federal Tax Institute here, sends along word that the House Ways and Means committee in Washington is interested in hearing comments and suggestions regarding tax legislation in the area of international trade and foreign business.

Seghers, who is chairman of the international section of the New York Board of Trade, Inc., reminds that the committee will begin hearings on this topic--which because of the St. Lawrence Seaway may soon be of great interest in the Miami Valley--in December. The Honorable Hale Boggs is chairman of a House subcommittee on foreign trade policy which will initiate legislation in this field.
